

KETS DE VRIES INSTITUTE

MARGOT SCHUMACHER

Margot Schumacher is an Adjunct Professor in leadership development and an experienced executive coach, helping senior leaders to grow professionally and personally in an international environment. Margot advises multinationals on their leadership development initiatives. She has a strong passion for people, leadership and organisational development and she helps top teams and boards to improve. Clients call her authentic, and her global experience provides her a deep understanding of different cultural backgrounds and cross-cultural challenges.

With many years of experience in the industry, she has a sound business background. Margot started her career as a consultant and has since then held leadership positions in different multinationals. She worked in senior, regional and global roles as line manager and change management roles, before moving into leadership and executive coaching full time in 2010. She has been based in Shanghai (China), Pittsburgh (USA), London (UK) before returning to the Netherlands in 2014.

Margot teaches and coaches at business schools globally. She is a senior associate for the Kets De Vries Institute, an Adjunct Professor of Leadership Development for Tias Business School, and an executive coach for top business schools.

Margot holds a master's in Industrial Engineering and Management Science from the Eindhoven University of Technology, and she graduated cum laude from the Executive MBA graduate from the University of Southern California. Furthermore, she is an alumnus from INSEAD, from the Executive Masters in Coaching & Consulting for Change programme. Through the years she attended several coaching related certification programmes.

Margot, a native of the Netherlands, is married and lives with three children in The Netherlands.